Dog Toys & Games

The toy category is serious business. Any pet retailer knows; toys represent one of the most effective tools to boost the bottom line. High margins, the potential for powerful displays and repeat business, and the market's continuous influx of fresh new designs and bright colors make this a particularly dynamic category. And best of all, toys make customers smile and dogs happy. Trends in the pet toy category are always changing – one day plush snuggle toys are in trend, and the next it's an interactive fetch toy.

DETERIORATING VISION – BLINDNESS

With our four-legged friends, their vision often decreases slowly in old age as does ours. The reason for this is mostly cataract that can be seen in the eye lenses as they slowly becoming opaque.

The best support you can give your senior pet is not to make any changes to your joint living area. Everything that is familiar helps your pet to find the way and gives a feeling of security. Make it as easy for your pet as you can and create surroundings without barriers and without unnecessary obstacles and dangers.

That goes for outside as well. Dogs will continue to enjoy going on those walks that they are used to. Leading your dog on a leash gives support and is advisable for safety reasons as well. If your pet likes to follow you or another dog, you can even master new walks.

For cats that roam outside there is a higher risk when their vision decreases. Road traffic and other animals can become an even greater danger. Here you have to decide if you want to reduce unsecured roaming for your cat as far as you can. Maybe an area in the garden or on the patio can be fenced off and made secure? Or you can convince your cat to go on walks together with you in harness and leash? This needs a bit of practice, but then become a good alternative to free roaming.

You do not need to stop playing with your pet, for many blind or visually impaired dogs are just as lively and love to play as their counterparts without problems. Soft yellow toys that make sounds are optimal. Yellow is a colour that dogs can see particularly well. In addition to that, such toys appeal to your dog's sense of hearing and are easy to grip and carry.

TIP:

'Mausi's Ball' has become famous because it reintroduced the fun in playing with a ball to many affected animals.
